School District, "just couldn't believe it." Mrs. Sturges said in commenting on her husband's reaction to his glamorized wife. "We thought they had just put another woman out there and would show him his wife afterwards!" "But my little girl, Corrine, who's two, wouldn't kiss me. She wouldn't even come near me. I really was disappointed when she didn't recognize me," the young mother said. Astonishment was the keynote to everyone's reaction. Humorous Twist A humorous twist was given to the story when Mrs. Sturges went to visit her brother-in-law the next day. He didn't recognize her when she knocked on the door. "May I come in?" she asked. "Yes," Robert E. Fulton, the brother-in-law, said hesitantly. "But what do you want?" Mrs. Sturges finally had to tell him who she was. "They made you prettier with every step," Mrs. Sturges mused, completely carried away still by the wonderful thing which happened to her. "It's sure something to remember Mother. She just kept looking at me and kept shaking her head." Recalling one amusing effect her glamorization had, Mrs.

Sturges spoke of a little niece who went to her Mommy saying, "Why don't you get glamorized, too?" While she was pretty nervous about the whole experience, Mrs. Sturges thinks that her husband was no less nervous. When he saw everyone applauding for his wife in the studio, Sturges, who had already stopped, began to applaud furiously. On the way home he just kept giggling to himself the whole way. He just couldn't believe it. Presents Mrs. Sturges' presents included the following: Elgin-American caryall, Olga bra and waist cincher, Rosenblum jacket, wardrobe of Lilly Dache gloves, Luxite negligee and gown, Evans handbag, Pandora slip, Waltham diamond wrist watch, Lucinda suit, one half dozen pair Mojod hosiery, three Catalina wool sweaters, a red gabardine dress, a night at the Casablanca Hotel, Elgin-American pearls, one pair Chandler shoes, jewels by Trifari, 32 ounce bottle of "My Sin" cologne, hair styling by Frank and Joseph, evening gown by Emma Damb, orchid corsage, and a Trifari key to glamour. There was a particularly happy ending to this story since Mrs. Sturges was made "Glamour Girl" just in time for the Redondo High School Reunion Ball which was held at the Hollywood Riviera Club. This time Mr. and Mrs. Sturges attended.
